The artist

Lieve Ophalvens is a Belgian painter.

In all aspects of her art her dreamlike creations destruct and restructure the female anatomy in her own way.

What at first glance may seem like a complicated and sometimes somber universe, gradually reveals a colorful world with round and happy shapes.

Her paintings hesitate between the abstract and the figurative and give us this impression of traveling in a dream world.

The body is captured in close-up and arranged in such a way that it eventually decomposes towards the abstraction.

Resident artist of Monteoliveto Gallery from 10 years, she is fully represented from 2019 in all art events of the gallery.

She received her training in various workshops under the expert guidance of several academy teachers, including Nico Deboeck, who quickly urged her to develop her own style.

A forty years ago she started with painting after following several artschools and quickly gave exhibitions at home and abroad, solo and in group.

25 years ago she founded an artschool in Belgium, near Brussels, where she is still in charge.

The artist experimented with different types of techniques: oil, acrylic, marble and collage, as well as the use of different materials, paper, mirror, chalk, sand, in order to better express her feelings.

Recently, she worked on oil portraits, eyes often close to maximize the feelings of the characters.

«Mijn kunst wil een klein positief deeltje zijn in de onmetelijke negativiteit op deze aarde..»
Mon art veut être une petite partie positive de la négativité incommensurable sur cette terre.
